

Lights by night an light by day,

Night by night and day by day;

Write and write the always right way,

The right way tonight is starlight by pay.

For the light is in your eyes and love in your heart,

As you are not stupid but very clever and smart;

For cupid is shooting arrows out up into the air,

And where they all land just no one will care.

For the beauty of the night life and special sun,

When you travel around the world and all days are done;

When night lights and stars both twinkle bright in your eyes,

The heavenly lights of the night are like paradise blue skies.

And I'm meaning and twisting as the world goes around,

To remember the places whether by night, day or sound;

For the freshness and newness of being all left at home,

Is for God and his armies and all the troops in Rome.

And I look to the light so bright all around the world,

As the earth turns and it twists and murmurs all words;

For the creek in the neck is a saw on the nose,

And the lights by night all propose with a rose.

So the lights by night are to sit up early and write,

And the sun stands still as all work has to be done right;

For the beauty and trouble are the perfect meaning of love,

Is for God in the stars to light by night from above.

Signed,

Otherwise Daytime.
