

Palms are plants that are of the tropical in sort and nature,
When rainforest or tundra habitant take precepas;
I love seeing tropical plants and palms are so precious,
That they delight you and live to also delight me.

Now if you hand me a pot from the palm of your hand,
It just might be a palm that you want to get rid of;
And I will say thank you and bless you as such,
That I might be delighted by a nice green palm.

Then if it is cool or is warm to delight the heart,
You can say it was my love, this gift of life in a day;
I think you have given me the joy of a peaceful palm,
To look at and admire from time to time in mind.

Some are a bright green to illuminate the light,
Of lime or light green to pacify the eye;
Some come in stripes of green to soften the sight,
That the right green is the perfect paradise delight.

From parlour palms to dates or island natives,
The day seems more peaceful to look at these that way;
As time passes and the rains give their drink,
To sip and partake in a tropical cocktail think,

Now as the beauty of these tropical plant trees,
Satisfy your need and my mind being set free;
Remember the island home of the paradise trees,
And leave them well alone to the birds and the bees.

Signed,

Growing and glowing green.
