

This is the sword of King Arthur by legend,
Who drew this sword out of the stone;
Only he was worthy and was the right person to do,
As with power and worthiness he claimed this sword as his.

Arthur was to hold and use his sword to fight and win.
As many a knight sought it to use as their own;
And when Lancelot died Percival was there by his side,
This squire now named Parsifal as a knight in his own right.

Was it to be lost in eternity forever and a day;
Parsifal was to claim it as Lancelot's squire;
When Lancelot became king after Arthur,
It was held in The Grail Castle to by the Fisher King.

It could have been Arthur who was The Fisher King,
Lost in amazement and disillusionment by these artefacts things;
Lancelot was killed and Parsifal took the sword,
When in His schizophrenic state stole and took the thing.

The questions and answers of Excalibur were vaguely known,
But whoever held it, wielded power with unlimited strength and might;
The quest to be its owner and guardian of the sword,
Was acknowledged as a prize of great worth to reign supreme.

So as things turn out Parsifal now held it in The Fisher Kings castle,
The Fisher King now dead and Parsifal reigning in glory.
Then this sword which was an artefact ordained by God.
Was held high and holy in the quest for true love.

Signed,

For The Love Of God.
