

For the first time in my life I feel like I'm breaking through,
By being who I am and showing what I do;
It's not just a hunch but now like a real feeling,
I don't have to kill or hate or even think I'm stealing.

But I trust in my heart that I'm really helping someone,
You see it's all so important to feel you're worthwhile;
To know in yourself that you can come through,
For just what you do is like gratification amplified true.

This aim to be someone is beautifully expanded upon,
When you see others and how they've shone;
To be able to relate to someone who's already a success,
Is magnified and multiplied in reciprocal progress.