A million costs everything to anyone these days,
A million stars all shining in all there various ways;
A million matters mostly for money to pay the price,
A million years of freedom would still be very nice.
A million words to think of, all with separate meaning,
A million products to buy and try all to keep cleaning;
A million times for living life, to take a million breaths,
A million graves for sinners who died a million deaths.
A million steps and beats while people are walking,

A million thoughts come to the mind while talking;
A million seconds to happen for those who are living,
A million meals provided by those with love of giving.
•
A million songs to sing that haven't been sung before,
A million ideas to write and then read a million more;
A million prayers to God for forgiveness and for love,
A million dreams with passion for heaven up above.
•
A million smiles of enjoyment all in coloured pictures,
A million questions to answer and find to be richer;
A million deeds to do for things that must be done,

A million wants and needs and being granted none.
•
A million hearts all beating, knowing what they are,
A million people caring, how long to go and how far;
A million ways of selling for a tidy little bit of profit,
A million fortunes predicted and spoken by a prophet.
Signed,
Do you speak my language?
