

The aim is naturally to find a write the right idea in life,
Which people talk about and read many books of foil and strife;
But to question and answer the truth supplies the meaning and proof,
As we each seek to obtain the right idea for our life and live the truth.

If money is the answer for everything what have we time left for,
Or if everything is our own, what desire to we seek to have more;
So to write the right idea, we must listen and hear to understand,
That many things in life are there and when are where things are grand.

What is the right idea? Does anyone really know at all?
Does everything have to be straight and true? To stand square and tall;
What do you think is the right idea? Have you left that for me to write for you,
Reading what you like and doing what you can, will help you win and new.

Perhaps there is no idea of what is right and wrong at all,
And everything is grey and hard to understand why we feel small;
Perhaps were better off not knowing and learning it to God, where all the bad on earth is beaten and the good remains not odd.

Then again the right idea is what is real and the ideal of self,
Where you are well written and read as books sit on the shelf;
Perhaps we should do all we can to serve and help somebody else,
As we seek to earn our daily amount for needs and wants ourselves.

Maybe last of all the right idea is to know and understand it all,
That the knowledge of our fearsome life gives peace to last;
And maybe we could sit on the beach and watch the waves crash out,
Or buy an island of our own and pay for it all in cold cash.

Signed,

Clever Daydreaming