

Two hearts that beat as one till the end,
Both so lovely both won a friend;
Two hearts together that are intertwine,
Both beating for each other, both just divine.

Two hearts together how lovely they are,
Both intermingled both seek the star;
Two hearts together how perfect they are,
To be lost in each other no matter how far.

Two hearts together both loving on prayer,
Both characteristic with such loving care;
Two hearts two lives to days in the years,
Both with the truth of what will appear.

Two hearts too beautiful to waste life away,
Both individual with their own thoughts to say;
Lost in a dream world of such endless bliss,
Two hearts just searching for the ultimate kiss.

Two hearts still yearning for each other's love,
Together their sharing their thoughts from above;
Two hearts still burning their light all afire,
Instilling the confidence and the burning desire.

Two hearts with vision imagining what could be,
Together their telling the story of he;
Two hearts centred on God and his love,
His is the thing and hers is the dove.

Signed,
