

Well I thought I knew where everything was,

And everything was where it should be,

But something's went where they didn't belong;

So where they were was some place wrong.

.

Now everything should have a place where it can go,

But sometimes things aren't always where you know;

So you have to put things where that they should be,

The everyone sees where and it helps things agree.

.

Well now the thing that was, was where it could be found,

And it was something you wore and stood above the ground;

It was worn aware and it was a ware to go where,

And you were aware that this was something to wear.

.

When wearing this ware you had to know where to wear,

And if where you were to wear the ware somewhere;

The ware you wear was a ware where things were worn,

As it wasn't right not to wear wares once you were born.

.

Wares have to be worn when you want to go somewhere,

And the ware you wear must suit where you want to wear;

Though if you wear a ware too much the ware wears out;

And when the ware wears out you remember where you wore.

.

So if you don't know where you wore there is a war to warn you where,

So that where you were before you can remember what you were wearing;

Then the places where you wore are worn to remind you where,

So you remind yourself where and remember what you were wearing.

.

Well where the wear was worn was a place we call a hall,

And the reason you were wearing was because it was a ball;

So all were wearing wears to this place we all knew where,

And everyone was wearing aware because all wares were worn.

.

Signed,

Try and be aware.