

God abides in heaven above,

While here on earth I need his love;

God abides both near and far,

Until I look through the door ajar.

God abides both within and without.

While my poor head is filled with doubt,

God abides on high in the sky,

When time has come, in dust I'll lie.

God abides deep within my heart,

With people and things being quite smart;

God abides over hovering waters,

As parents watch their sons and daughters.

God abides in the minds of men,

As I watch the words flowing from my pen;

God abides in the life of the living,

As the dead are judged by effort and giving.

God abides in the words on a page,

As generations turn and people age;

God abides in the things of old,

Where sandstone turns from rock to gold.

God abides in thought and deed,

Where time seeks out and searches my need;

God abides in life and death,

As now I seek him and draw my breath.

Signed,

Still to be found.
